

Caroline Larson, CPA, is a partner with Eide Bailly, LLP, a top 20 certified public accounting firm with offices across the United States and India. Caroline provides consulting services to community colleges, county offices of education, regional occupational programs, special education local plan areas, and K-12 public schools to assist their business employees to thrive and grow. Caroline was also a partner at Vavrinek, Trine, Day & Co., LLP for more than 20 years, serving in executive leadership and leading consulting and marketing initiatives for the firm.

Caroline and her team provide professional development through Eide Bailly and in partnership with other organizations such as the Fiscal Crisis Management Team's Chief Business Official Certificate program at University of Southern California and the State of California Treasurer's Office Tax Revenue Anticipation Note program.

Caroline also taught for seventeen years in the Chief Business Official certificate program at the University of California, Riverside and California Association of School Business Officials professional development workshop series. She served as a judge in the national meritorious budget award competition held by the Association of School Business Officials (ASBO) International. She is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants (AICPA), California Association of School Business Officials (CASBO) and the California Society of Certified Public Accountants (CALCPA).

Caroline earned entrepreneurship undergraduate and graduate degrees from Babson College in Wellesley, MA and attended the Master of Taxation program at Golden Gate University. She began her career working for Minnesota, Mining & Manufacturing Co. (3M), Roadway Express, Barstow Unified School District and by serving in the U.S. Navy as a supply officer. She is a life-long learner and enjoys the beach, cooking, swimming, yoga, racquet sports, board games and spending time with family.