

Deborah Logan is a Corporate and Foundation Philanthropy Specialist at California State University, San Bernardino where she is tasked with securing private and corporate funding university-wide for faculty, and faculty research, presidential initiatives, and CSUSB centers. Deborah joined the CSUSB University Advancement team in 2017, and is an alumna having earned her bachelor's degree in Communication. After completing her degree, she began working in public relations and publishing, that led to her finding her passion in non-profit development and fundraising.

Choosing her niche, Logan has worked in philanthropic endeavors for the past 16 years, managing pre-award grants prospecting and submission in higher education and non-profit arenas with emphasis in grant writing. Prior to coming to CSUSB, she worked as a development professional securing large federal grants, private foundation funding and stewarding relationships among college constituents and external stakeholders.

When she isn't garnering substantial grant awards for university programs and CSUSB students she spends her time learning Spanish and volunteering for local environmental clean-up and sustainability projects.
