

CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY, SAN BERNARDINO

Online Forensic Accounting Certificate

Litigation Support

Digital Forensics

Matrimonial Forensics

Investigation

Earning your Forensic Accounting Certificate will strengthen your accounting career!

Adding Value

Enhance your skill set, offer additional client services by providing civil and criminal litigation support, and truly become that trusted advisor enabling organic growth in your business by becoming a Forensic Accounting professional. With this high-demand field, opportunities abound for those armed with the knowledge and credential to do the job.

Who uses Forensic Accountants?

Small to medium-sized businesses, large corporations, government agencies, non-profits, and NGOs all need Accountants. Many will require the services of a qualified Forensic Accounting professional. Whether an employee or a contracted CPA, who is providing the service depends on the entity's business model. Still, the need for forensic accounting may come up at any time; businesses and agencies need to be ready. By bringing your Certificate in Forensic Accountant skills to the job, you can provide the needed service.

The Details

The course is ideal for accounting students and CPA licensed professionals wanting to practice in the Forensic Accounting area and earn 45 CPE hours for the complete course. Topics covered include: Fraud, Family Law, Economic Damages, Business Valuations.

Prerequisite: No degree is required to register; however, knowledge of foundation of accounting principles is required. The course follows the curriculum set forth by the AICPA preparation for attaining the CFF (Certification in Forensic Accounting). All Students will have access to the AICPA's locked resources for CFF and ABV professionals, and discounted certification examination fees.

Schedule: The course is comprised of 45 hours in 15 weeks. Class meets virtually once a week and uses only one textbook and many CFF student materials are included.

Scan code to visit our website:

Complete the application on the program website to get started. A Professional and Continuing Education staff member will contact you with details about the program.