MASTER OF ARTS  HOLISTIC & INTEGRATIVE EDUCATION

Certificate in Holistic & Integrative Education

We offer both a MA and a certificate in Holistic and Integrative Education. The MA in Education, Holistic and Integrative Education, is an innovative program for creative educators. It is designed for educators interested in entering a dialogue with a cohort of master’s students and a team of professors to explore how to develop and implement innovative and meaningful curriculum. Our major objective is to help each teacher become clearer about their vision of education and how to implement that vision in their classroom and professional life, including a high-stakes testing environment. The program has been recognized by its students and internationally for its transformative approach to teaching International Recognition. The program is appropriate for educators exploring implementation of the Common Core, the education of the whole child, home schooling and charter schools, and creating meaning consistent with a holistic and constructivist view point, and allows each educator to focus on their interests and what they can implement in their professional context.

The certificate program is for students that either already have a MA in education or do not wish to complete the requirements for the MA program (e.g., 24 additional units), but are interested in implementing a holistic and integrative approach to education (link: Certificate in Holistic and Integrative Education). The thirteenth cohort starts this fall, 2013 and is open to applications through CSU Mentor until September 3, 2013 and through open enrollment until September 23, 2013 (contact rlondon@csusb.edu for details).

Sample course plan under development. Check back soon.

Visit the Holistic & Integrative Education Program web site for additional information.