Dear Colleagues,

I am pleased to share that Kelly Campbell, professor of psychology, has been named interim vice provost of Academic Affairs. She will begin her new position on Aug. 17 and will also serve as the co-chief diversity officer on the President's Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion board.

Among her responsibilities, she will oversee the Offices of Academic Programs, Academic Research, Academic Success and Undergraduate Advising, Community Engagement, Graduate Studies and the university's libraries. She will also work closely with Tom Long, assistant dean of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences, who has been appointed to oversee assessment for the division and serve on the university's Assessment Capability Collaborative on an interim basis.

Dr. Campbell, recipient of the university's 2020-21 Golden Apple Award and several other honors, brings a wealth of experience to the position. She has served as associate director of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences' Institute for Child Development and Family Relations since 2011, director of the Honors Program in the Department of Psychology since 2013 and advisor for the Psi Chi International Honor Society since 2016.

A nationally recognized relationships expert, she has given dozens of presentations, supervised more than 40 theses, presented at nearly 120 conferences, published approximately 25 peer-reviewed journal articles and served five years as a radio show host for "Let's Talk Relationships" on Coyote Radio. She received her Ph.D. in child and family development, with a specialty in interpersonal relations, from the University of Georgia.

Please join me in congratulating Dr. Campbell on her new position. I'm confident she will be an asset to the Academic Affairs team and our partners during this transitory period. I would also like to extend my thanks to Deputy Provost Clare Weber for her service these last five years and wish her well in her new pursuit of special projects.

Sincerely,
Rafik
