

Golden West?: Jan Sawka's California Dream
February 3 - May 9, 2020

The Robert and Frances Fullerton Museum of Art

EXHIBITION OVERVIEW

Jan Sawka growing up in communist Poland, dreamed of the United States. He sought information and inspiration for those dreams from every source available. The vivid colors of the sumptuously printed magazine AMERYKA made a huge impression on his imagination. This contrasted with the dark visions of the American New Wave films, which were among the only films the communists allowed in cinemas, with the intention of portraying the West as a corrupt and dysfunctional world. This exhibition of paintings and works on paper focuses on the theme of California/America as a land of problematic promise.

ABOUT RAFFMA
