

As Senior Director of Corporate and Foundation Philanthropy, Annya Dixon, is charged with securing private funding through corporate, private, and family foundations for California State University, San Bernardino. Dixon cultivates and maintains an active portfolio of over 120 corporations and foundations including Verizon, Bank of America, Wells Fargo, College Futures Foundation, The James Irvine Foundation, Carnegie Corporation of New York, and many more. Since 2016, Dixon's department has raised over $16 million.

Dixon is a philanthropy professional with over 12 years' experience in communications, nonprofit, strategic planning, and community and corporate partnerships. She is proficient in writing, editing, and project management for various communications and philanthropic organizations. Dixon has managed national fundraisers, matching-gift campaigns, corporate partnerships, corporate conferences, and community forums. Before joining CSUSB in 2016, she worked with the client services team at The Fuller Foundation and as a development officer for an international maternal health organization called mothers2mothers.

Passionate about philanthropy and the betterment of humanity; Dixon has obtained local and global humanitarian experience working with homeless children on Skid Row, HIV/AIDS orphans in South Africa, and impoverished school children in India. Dixon graduated from Spelman College with her bachelor's degree in English in 2003 and a master's of science degree in Journalism from Boston University in 2008. Dixon serves as a mentor and member of the Association of Fundraising Professionals (AFP) of Inland Southern California, a member of the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE), and former chair of health education for Women United of Arrowhead United Way.