The Office of Research Development (ORD) is excited to offer the highly successful Productive Online Writing with Accountability (POWWA!) program to support CSUSB faculty writing aims this spring.

Want someone in your corner supporting your writing? Want to write when it works for you – with no unnecessary meetings? Terri Patchen, Ph.D., CSUF Professor and Faculty Fellow for Scholarship, will be with you every step of the way!

POWWA will help you:

- Align your writing with your publishing aims
- Be accountable to your writing deadlines
- Advance your writing in a safe and productive space with someone who supports faculty writing at all levels, across all disciplines

ORD-POWWA program expectations:

- Attend the initial (and only) POWWA meeting virtually on Tuesday, February 13, 2024, from noon-12:30 pm (if you can’t make the meeting, you can still POWWA)
- Commit to writing just two days each week (boom boom!), for an hour each day
- Send Terri writing every Monday.
- Meet your writing objectives by the end of POWWA

Register for POWWA by emailing Terri (tpatchen@fullerton.edu) by February 9th, 2024.

Workshop limited to 8 participants – apply now – spots go quickly!! Questions about the workshop? Email Terri at: tpatchen@fullerton.edu

Check out these CSUSB POWWA testimonials:

Terri was amazing! She had super helpful insight and encouragement.

She helped me value my output. I experience her as very positively reinforcing -- her feedback and my working relationship with her leads me to keep writing more consistently.

POWWA got me excited to write again, helped me (re)identify as a writer, and made an impossibly stagnant project seem possible again.
