

AMERICANS WITH DISABILITIES ACT APPLICATION FOR ACCOMMODATION

The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, as Amended (ADA) prohibits employers from discriminating against individuals with disabilities. The ADA also prohibits retaliation against an employee for taking any action pursuant to the Act.

Definition of Disability: The ADA states that an individual is disabled if she/he:

- has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of the individual's major life activities;
- has a record of such an impairment; or
- is regarded as having such an impairment.

Definition of Qualified Individual: The term "qualified individual with a disability" means:

- An individual with a disability,
- who can perform the "essential functions" of the employment position,
- with or without reasonable accommodation.

Employers are required to provide job accommodation to the known limitation(s) of a person with a disability, as defined by the Americans with Disabilities Act.

A job accommodation is a reasonable adjustment to a job or work environment that makes it possible for an individual with a disability to perform job duties. Determining whether to provide accommodations involves considering the required job tasks, the functional limitations of the person doing the job, the level of hardship to the employer, and other issues.

Accommodations may include specialized equipment, facility modifications, adjustments to work schedules or job duties, as well as a whole range of other creative solutions.

Self-Disclosure: In order to establish the existence of a disability and request reasonable accommodation under the ADA, an employee must complete and submit a Request for Disability Accommodation Form. The form can be submitted Online or by printing and submitting to the Human Resources Department located in Sierra Hall 110.

A copy of the ADA Request form should be provided to your department chair or supervisor to ensure that accommodations can be made in quick and professional manner.

FACULTY & STAFF ACCOMMODATION PROCEDURES

Step 1) Documentation of Disability:

When an employee submits a Request for Disability Accommodation Form, she/he must provide, at his/her own expense, documentation for his/her disability in the form of a written evaluation by an appropriate health care provider. The employees' health care provider must describe the following:

- 1) Information regarding the employee's medical disability outlining specific medical words and terminology.
- 2) Outline the limitations caused by the disability and note recommended job accommodations.
- 3) Describe the length of time that the employee will need to have job accommodations due to his/her disability.
- 4) If a disability arise due to an incident, the employee's medical provider should explicitly clear employee to return to work.

Step 2) Temporary Accommodations:

After consultation with the employee and his/her department chair or supervisor, the ADA Coordinator, may provide the employee with a temporary accommodation pending receipt and evaluation of the documentation of the disability. The ADA Coordinator will notify the employee, in writing, of the temporary accommodation to be provided.

Step 3) Evaluation of Documentation:

Upon receipt of documentation from an employee's health care provider, the University will determine if the employee has a disability as defined by the ADA, and if the employee can perform the essential functions of her/his position, with or without reasonable accommodation.

Step 4) Final Determination and Notification to Staff or Faculty Members:

The University has the authority to make a determination regarding what accommodation, if any, is appropriate. When a final determination is made, the ADA Coordinator will send written notification to the employee of the determination, whether an accommodation has been granted, and if so, will specify what accommodation has been granted. The ADA Coordinator will also notify the employee's department chair or supervisor if an accommodation is to be provided to the employee.

If an employee feels that the job accommodation set forth by ADA Coordinator does not meet the medical needs of the employee, a follow up meeting can be scheduled to further discuss additional reasonable accommodations. Please contact Alisha Carnahan by phone at 909-537-3720 or by email Alisha.Carnahan@csusb.edu to schedule a follow-up meeting.

Interactive Process Employee Responsibilities Overview

Introduction

The Interactive Process provides employees with an opportunity to discuss their job functions and determine if a reasonable, effective accommodation(s) can be made based on their work restrictions. As a part of this process, employees meet with a representative from the Human Resources Department to explore and come to a mutually agreeable accommodation, and to select and implement an accommodation that is most appropriate for the affected parties.

Employee Responsibilities

As a participant in the Interactive Process, it is your responsibility to:

- Meet with a representative from the Human Resources Department (and a department representative) to discuss your job functions and limitations;
- Make a personal effort and take responsibility for offering ideas and suggestions for reasonable accommodation;
- Maintain communication with the Human Resources (HR) representative and your supervisor, and update them if your contact information should change;
- Comply with your work restrictions;
- Inform your supervisor and the HR Representative of any changes to your work restrictions and provide the supporting documentation;
- Provide timely supporting medical documentation to the HR Representative, HR Benefits Office, and/or your supervisor regarding your work restrictions;
- Take applicable test(s) and/or provide an updated resume, if unable to be accommodated in your current job assignment;
- Abide by all safety regulations;
- Meet at any time to evaluate the effectiveness of any accommodation that may be implemented for you.

If you're unable to be reasonably accommodated in your current job assignment, then other options may be explored; however, you should understand that the University is not required to create a new position, bump another employee, or promote you as an accommodation candidate as part of the accommodation process.

Your participation in the Interactive Process does not preclude you from competing for promotions (outside of the accommodation process) or from enrolling in courses offered by the University to enhance your job skills and knowledge; however, employees should also understand that accommodation candidates do not receive preferential treatment for promotional opportunities.

Again, the goal of this process is to come to a mutually agreeable accommodation and to select and implement the accommodation that is most appropriate for you and your department.
