PUBLIC RELATIONS CAMPAIGNS

Cal-Nev Imagine – Director of Communications

(Spring 2013 to Spring 2015)

Cal-Nev Imagine was a regional campaign that was part of The United Methodist Church's global Imagine No Malaria campaign. The United Methodist Church had a four-year $75 million goal. The California-Nevada Conference (which is where this regional campaign took place) had a goal of $2 million towards the $75 million goal. This campaign was aimed at and targeted the 360 churches and 78,000 United Methodists in Northern California and Northern Nevada. Imagine No Malaria is a global partnership to beat malaria by improving the ways people fight the disease using bed nets, providing access to diagnostic tests and medicine, draining standing water, and improving sanitation. Imagine No Malaria combines integrated health infrastructure, education and advocacy to address death and the debilitating effects of malaria in sub-Saharan Africa. The campaign helped to reduce malaria deaths by half. The largest single gift by an individual to the campaign of $1.1 million came from the California-Nevada Conference as a result of the Cal-Nev Imagine campaign. The campaign included a website, videos, and resources for interpretation in the local churches.

Ministry *With – Director of Communications

(Fall 2011 and Spring 2012)

One of the four areas of mission focus for The United Methodist Church is alleviating and overcoming poverty together. United Methodists have sought to improve the quality of life and opportunities for all people. I was Director of Communications for the global mission agency for the 12-million-member denomination. The agency was tasked with taking the lead on this focus area. During my tenure we developed the "Ministry *With" campaign. The focus was on walking "with" persons in poverty to lead towards eradication. The church engages in ministries to eradicate poverty by partnering with, and empowering, those in need. We developed a website, www.ministrywith.org, with resources to learn how others have been effective advocates and partners with the poor, and to find resources and ways to get involved.

10-Fold – Director of Communications

(October 2010 and October 2011)

10-Fold was an internet-based campaign launched on October 10, 2010 (10/10/10), and also took place in October of 2011. The campaign was designed to educate and raise funds for the hundreds of mission projects of United Methodists around the world. A website was set up to promote the initiative as well as host daily webcasts highlighting the programs around the world. When you users logged on, they could click and button and generate a donation directly to the campaign from one of the sponsors. They could also donate directly to various projects. The campaign took place for 10 days both years.

Igniting Ministry – National Trainer

(2001 – 2008)

I served as a national trainer for the Igniting Ministry for The United Methodist Church's 12-million-member denomination. I led more than 30 trainings across the nation training more than 30,000 church leaders. Some of the cities in which these trainings took place include Washington, D.C., Los Angeles, CA, Richmond, VA, Atlanta, GA, Denver, CO, Montgomery, AL, Macon, GA, and Chicago, IL. Igniting Ministry was a national advertising campaign launched by The United Methodist Church's national communications agency, United Methodist Communications (UMCom) in 2001 with a $22 million budget and a memorable promise: “Our hearts, our minds, and our doors are always open. The people of The United Methodist Church.” Focused on 25- to 54-year-olds, the campaign was a new kind of multimedia evangelism, comprising television, print, digital, and outdoor advertising tools. Local churches were equipped with the tools, grants to help finance their placement, and a renewed emphasis to live out a welcoming environment in their congregations. Welcoming training began with “training the trainer” events, followed by 33 regional training sessions across the country. The hope was that all congregations would be prepared for the first-time visitor influx, people who had seen the advertising and were seeking to learn more about The United Methodist Church. Comprehensive training kits were available so that local churches could bring their congregations on-board with the national efforts.

Igniting Ministry Campaign Southern California and Hawaii – Director of Communications

(Fall 2005)

Igniting Ministry was a national advertising campaign launched by The United Methodist Church’s national communications agency, United Methodist Communications (UMCom) in 2001 with a $22 million budget and a memorable promise: “Our hearts, our minds, and our doors are always open. The people of The United Methodist Church.” The California-Pacific Conference was awarded a matching grant to run television commercials during the Back-To-School (September) time of year. As the Director of Communications for the California-Pacific Conference, I worked with the Nashville based Buntin Group to place television ads on cable in the Los Angeles, San Diego, and Honolulu television markets.

Igniting Ministry Campaign in Washington, D.C. and Northern Virginia – Associate Director of Communications

(Spring 2002)

Igniting Ministry was a national advertising campaign launched by The United Methodist Church’s national communications agency, United Methodist Communications (UMCom) in 2001 with a $22 million budget and a memorable promise: “Our hearts, our minds, and our doors are always open. The people of The United Methodist Church.” The Baltimore-Washington Conference in cooperation with Metropolitan United Methodist Church in Washington, D.C. and the region in Northern Virginia, was awarded a matching grant to run television commercials during the Lenten time of year leading into Easter. As the Associate Director of Communications for the Baltimore-Washington Conference, I worked with the Nashville based Buntin Group to place cable television ads in the Washington, D.C./Northern Virginia (Beltway) market. Church attendance rose by 55 percent.

Holy Boldness Saving Stations – Associate Director of Communications

(Spring and Summer 2002)

This was a comprehensive advertising campaign to raise awareness of The United Methodist Churches in Baltimore, MD, and get addicted folks off the street and into rehab through what were called “Saving Stations” (tent ministries). At the time it was estimated that 60,000 Baltimore city residents were addicted to illegal chemical substances/drugs. The campaign included ads on television, in newspapers, radio, and appearances by regional leaders on radio programs, direct mail, and door hangers that were distributed in the neighborhoods that hosted the Saving Stations. The ads were produced by United Methodist Communications (UMCom) and were called “Diversity.” They featured a number of diverse faces and voices speaking about religion and closed with the tagline, “The people of The United Methodist Church believe in Baltimore.” The ad campaign ran from June 10 to September 3. Ads appeared 100 times each week on news programs throughout the summer. Twenty radio ads ran on five stations each week. Ads also appeared on the religion page of the Saturday issue of the Baltimore Sun.

Mississippi United Methodists – Director of Communications (Spring 2000)

I worked with the Mississippi Association of Broadcasters in the Spring of 2000 to place United Methodist television ads on local news across the state to raise awareness of the 970 churches and 170,000 United Methodists.
